

Prep Médico: Navigating Your Path Into Medicine

The UC Davis School of Medicine is pleased to offer this six-week residential pipeline program for freshman and sophomore college students interested in becoming physicians. Prep Médico's main focus is to help students navigate their educational journey towards medical school and provide exposure to the world of patient care.

Program highlights

- Experience dormitory life on a college campus
- Shadow health professionals from UC Davis Health and Kaiser Permanente
- Participate in medical simulation labs
- Explore health disparities and social determinants of health affecting Latino populations
- Discover health policy and its impact on Latino health
- Assess your leadership style and explore new skills
- Develop your path into medicine with structured mentoring and advising
- Social justice, race relations and identity development
- No application fee
- Housing and transportation provided (meals are not included)
- Small stipend upon successful program completion

Program eligibility

- 2.85 GPA or higher
- Demonstrated interest in medicine and in serving Latino communities
- Completion of English Composition and first semester of General Chemistry OR General Biology
- In your first or second year college
- Northern California or Central Valley resident
- Proof of all required immunizations

APPLICATIONS OPEN JANUARY 2019

For more information

Visit: bit.ly/UCDHPrepMedico

Email: hs-prepmedico@ucdavis.edu

Call: 916-734-2743